Editorial

Dear Members and Partners,

As we move into 2025, our joint commitment to meeting the challenge of the "3Rs" (reduce, reuse and recycle) has never been stronger.

You have chosen Adelphe to help you manage your extended producer responsibility (EPR) for household packaging and graphic paper. To that end, you pay us an eco-contribution that we primarily use to fund :

- local authorities so that they can organise selective collection (yellow bin, transportation, sorting centre operations) and out-of-home collection
- reuse, eco-design and R&D initiatives to provide you with practical tools for reducing the impact of your packaging

Every year, this eco-contribution changes based on new governmental requirements aimed at reducing the environmental impact of your businesses. You may recall that two additional new measures must now be taken: funding of recycling for certain plastics and litter management. As a result of these changes, extra systems need to be implemented in the field, resulting in a rise in your annual contribution.

We are aware that these adjustments may have an impact on your businesses and have endeavoured to apply them as fairly as possible. This guide provides answers to all your questions and details of bonuses you can access to reduce your contribution.

Adelphe & You

As an Adelphe member, you can access a comprehensive range of tailored support on :

- eco-design: to help you reassess and improve your packaging and graphic paper so it can be reduced, recycled and reused. In most cases, this virtuous circle will allow you to save money!
- regulatory monitoring : we'll provide you with information and summaries regarding the latest developments in France and Europe;
- communication : we'll explain your obligations concerning markings on your packaging and paper (Sorting Info) and consumer-focused communication;
- administrative procedures : your declarations and various regularly updated informative tools are available in the client portal.

Recycling Graphic Papers

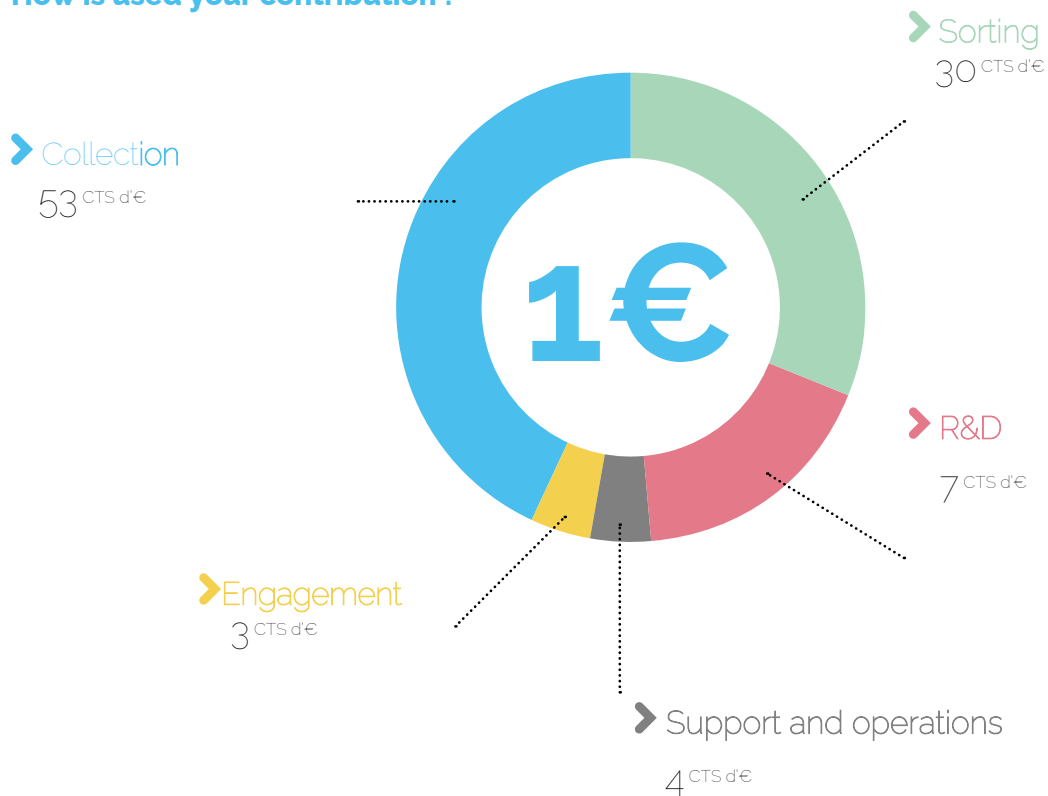

Since January 2024, the EPR for Household Packaging and EPR for Papers have merged. Adelphes is accredited for this new EPR.

What's new for 2025?

- A 10% rise in unit rates for supporting selective collection and sorting set out in the specifications for the household packaging and graphic paper EPR scheme.
- The order of 13 April 2021 stipulates that, as of 1 January 2025, any printed materials intended for the public must be free of mineral oils whose concentration by mass in ink exceeds 0.1%.
